

Do you guys really think it is fair to give wireless carries so much power that they can bill their customers a fee to recieve a detailed bill. Shouldnt options like this be standard. It seems like wireless carriers are getting out of control with fees. And now with the E-rate program being abused....why should consumers have to participate in a fund that is regulated be telecom executives for the profit of their companies. Something should really be done to control this.